

American Library Association Corporate Membership

ALA is the world's oldest and largest membership organization for libraries, addressing issues of concern such as library funding and growth. Corporate Members of the American Library Association (ALA) have premier access to 62,000 individual and 4,000 organizational members of ALA through our convention and trade shows. Corporate Members receive recognition as supporters of libraries, librarians and library workers. ALA brings you visibility in the marketplace and offers you member-to-member access to buyers and decision makers in the library community.

Corporate Members receive preferred booth space assignments for ALA's Annual Conference, Midwinter Meeting, and ALA divisions' various conferences. Your voting membership in ALA and our Exhibitors Round Table (ERT) means your voice is heard in planning and promotion of ALA events while you support the work of ALA: outreach and advocacy for America's libraries. Corporate Members at any level receive a 15% discount on ALA goods and services, including all ALA subscription mailing lists as well as the use of the unique Corporate Member logo on your marketing materials.
